Right angle weave" Berry beads Bracelet"

Finished size...About 20.5cm (1.62 ft.)

Tools...Scissors • Ruler • Stopper bead(11/0 seed bead or Delica bead) • Pliers

- 1) Leave the 40cm thread tail at the beginning, then make the base of the bracelet with right angle weave. After weaving, leave the thread end. (Don't cut thread ends.) (Use two 1.7m (5.5ft.)lengths of beading thread.)

- 2) Use the thread ends you left at 1) to connect a metal component, then end the thread. Remove the stopper bead from the thread tail at the beginning, then connect the other end of bracelet to the metal component

※Thread in the picture looks loose, but actually it needs to be tight. Lightened beads in the picture are already strung. The needle doesn't show here.

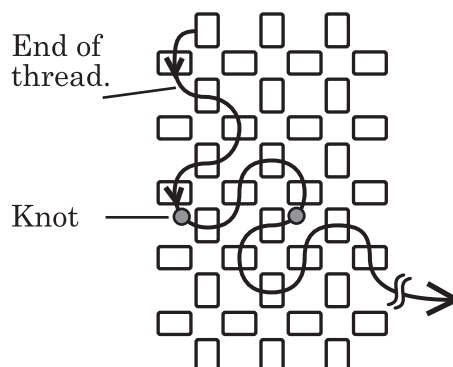

Adding new berry beads and connect the bracelet end to the metal component. Then, pull the thread tight and shape the base of bracelet.

Pass through the berry beads just strung and the loops of metal component as shown above. End the thread ends. Remove the stopper bead from the other side of thread end (★), then repeat the same process for connecting bracelet to the metal component.

Basics How to end thread

To end a thread, weave back into the beadwork, following the existing thread path and two or three times between beads as you go. Weave through a few beads after the last knot, and trim the thread.
